Volunteers light up Christmas for 6 families

Published: December 27, 2008

Teens from The Let It Be Foundation teamed up with Home Depot on Dec. 4 to put up holiday decorations at the homes of six Chino Valley families who have children with life-threatening illnesses. The Junior Advisory Team includes junior high and high school students who hold fundraisers such as the annual lemonade stands and talent shows.

The teens coordinate projects such as bedroom and front yard makeovers for the children.

The Let It Be Foundation was formed in June 2006 by Chino Hills residents Michael and Ruthe Rosen after their 15-year-old daughter, Karla Asch-Rosen, died from a brain tumor.

The foundation provides services and support, including home maintenance, medical accessories, clothing, school supplies, and groceries.
